

Publication : Sunday Times

Date : 18.10.2010

Circulation : 1,068,158

It's a long way from Wisteria Lane to Switzerland, but that's where Desperate Housewife Eva Longoria, 35, has got herself a second home. Last month, her husband, the basketball player Tony Parker, paid what was believed to be £5m for a two-bedroom flat overlooking Lake Geneva. The couple's new 2,150 sq ft retreat is in the Du Parc Kempinski development at Mont Pèlerin, in the Vaud canton, a region famous for its vineyards. "It has the most beautiful view that I've ever had the opportunity to see," Parker gushed. The property is part of an old hotel — you guessed it, a Kempinski — that is being converted and will be ready by 2012. Prices reach £19m for a six-bedroom penthouse (kempinski-residences.com). Parker, 28, is no stranger to Europe: born in Belgium, he plays for France as well as the San Antonio Spurs.

The couple's apartment is in a converted Kempinski hotel